

Didier Rochard
Co-Founder, London Contemporary Voices
20-22 Wenlock Road
London
N1 7GU

2 April 2026

To whom it may concern

Re: Arts Council England application – Tim Seymour’s Tales for All Time

London Contemporary Voices (LCV) is pleased to support Tim Seymour’s Arts Council England application for Tales for All Time. We are excited by the project’s ambitious scope, combining cinematic orchestral writing with contemporary vocal artistry, and believe it represents a compelling and high-quality addition to the UK’s creative music landscape.

Based on our discussions, we are confident in the artistic vision and professional delivery of this project, including the planned collaboration with London Symphony Orchestra and the integration of one of our singers Lydia Clowes as a soloist. Lydia has been a member of LCV since her student years, and we have proudly supported her development into a full-time professional singer now working internationally. Her backing vocal credits include projects with artists such as Lewis Capaldi, U2 and Sam Smith, as well as extensive choral soundtrack recording experience for major film, television and game projects including Dune II, Hamnet and The Little Mermaid.

Working with Tim and the LSO will provide a transformative artistic opportunity for Lydia, marking her first feature as a soloist alongside an orchestra of this calibre, and offering invaluable experience at the highest professional level, with significant exposure. LCV would be delighted to collaborate and support the realisation of the vocal element. We also welcome the opportunity to share details of the final project across our social media channels (20,000+ followers), helping to broaden its reach and engage new audiences.

We recognise the strong potential for this work to reach diverse audiences and to showcase innovative cross-genre collaboration. We are therefore very happy to endorse this application and look forward to the possibility of working together.

Yours sincerely,

Didier Rochard
Co-Founder, London Contemporary Voices